Bullying vs Mean vs Rude Behavior What's the Difference?

K-5

For this month's lesson we focused on learning the difference between rude, mean and bullying behaviors. We talked about how none of those behaviors are acceptable, and there is something we can do to when each of those behaviors arise.

RUDE	MEAN	BULLYING
Saying or doing something that hurts someone else, without necessarily trying to be mean. Might be because of thoughtlessness, carelessness, or poor manners.	Saying or doing something to hurt someone on purpose. Based in anger or dislike. Could be arguing, yelling, fighting, name calling, teasing, and other mean comments.	When people hurt others over and over again, on purpose. There is an imbalance of power—meaning it's one sided and the victim does not bully back. Very serious where the victim needs help.

The younger students made a poster that said:
The End of Bullying Begins with Me!
Take a Stand, Lead a Hand

It's a reminder that we all can help prevent bullying and promote respectful behaviors. We can all offer a helping hand when we see someone who is being hurt by others.

Some of the classes read the book, "Say Something" that talked about stepping up and saying something when we see someone treating others poorly. It's very easy for us to ignore the problem because it's not happening to us, but we all know that when you are the one being picked on—help is always appreciated! That's when we need our friends the most. We should stand up to bullies and help our friends and classmates out.
